

Scenario: As a partner in a law firm, you earn $1,000,000 per year of K-1 Income ($83,333 gross monthly income).

Your employer provides a Group Disability Plan that will provide you $20,000 per month.

You have another Individual Disability policy for $10,000 per month.

But should you suffer a disability, these first two layers of coverage only provide you with a mere 36% of your income.

So what can you do to insure your income should you become disabled?

- ☞ The solution is to add an additional $20,000 of benefit per month from the Executive Income Assurance Plan® (EIAP®) on a guaranteed-issue basis to adequately replace your income at a full 60%.
